Label quality dangerous goods

NO. 16/2008

! Attention !

Apart from the size also the quality of hazard labels is essential. The IMO regulations gives us clear instructions. The fading of labels can lead to obscurity en poor judgement of risks (EG segregation).

Over the last period of time it has been noticed that container units with dangerous goods sometimes have labels which are seriously faded. Generally this is the result of a long period of storage and exposure to the sun.

The potential risks can simply be avoided by placing a new label on the unit. This will exclude any possible risks in the proces.
